DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 1-9 and 13-19, drawn to an in vitro method of screening human subjects to assess their risk of developing cervical carcinoma.

Group II, claim(s) 10-12, drawn to a kit.

The inventions listed as Groups I and II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

A product comprising one or more primer-pairs which enable amplification of a region of E6 transcripts from HPV-16 by NASBA and one or more molecular beacon probes does not involve an inventive step in view of Smits et al. (Application of the NASBA nucleic acid amplification method for the detection of human papillomavirus type 16 E6-E7 transcripts" J Virol Methods. 1995 Jul;54(1):75-81), in further view of Leone et al. ("Molecular beacon probes combined with amplification by NASBA enable homogeneous, real-time detection of RNA" Nucleic Acids Res. 1998 May 1;26(9):2150-5).

Smits et al. teaches amplification of a HPV-16 E6-E7 region that utilizes a amplification reaction composition including a primer-pair which enable amplification of a region of E6 transcripts from HPV-16 by NASBA (Page 76, Paragraphs 2,3, for example). Smits does not expressly teach the use of molecular beacons.

Leone et al. teach real-time monitoring of NASBA reactions utilizing molecular beacons (Pages 2151,2152, for example). They further teach that their methods allow for a truly homogeneous assay in which amplification and detection of RNA can occur in one-tube (Page 2155, Column 1, Paragraph 3, for example).

It would have been prima facie obvious to a practitioner of ordinary skill in the art to incorporate molecular beacons into the amplification reaction composition of Smits since Leone suggests such a modification to allow for amplification and detection of RNA in one-tube.

Thus, the said product cannot therefore be considered a special technical feature, as lack of unity rules hold that a feature that does not involve an inventive step to a person of ordinary skill in the art makes no advance over the prior art.

The examiner has required restriction between product and process claims. Where applicant elects claims directed to the product, and a product claim is subsequently found allowable, withdrawn process claims that depend from or otherwise include all the limitations of the allowable product claim will be rejoined in accordance with the provisions of MPEP § 821.04. Process claims that depend from or otherwise include all the limitations of the patentable product will be entered as a matter of right if the amendment is presented prior to final rejection or allowance, whichever is earlier. Amendments submitted after final rejection are governed by 37 CFR 1.116; amendments submitted after allowance are governed by 37 CFR 1.312.

In the event of rejoinder, the requirement for restriction between the product claims and the rejoined process claims will be withdrawn, and the rejoined process claims will be fully examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. Thus, to be allowable, the rejoined claims must meet all criteria for patentability including the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 101, 102, 103, and 112. Until an elected product claim is found allowable, an otherwise proper restriction requirement between product claims and process claims may be maintained. Withdrawn process claims that are not commensurate in scope with an allowed product claim will not be rejoined. See "Guidance on Treatment of Product and Process Claims in light of In re Ochiai, In re Brouwer and 35 U.S.C. § 103(b)," 1184 O.G. 86 (March 26, 1996). Additionally, in order to retain the right to rejoinder in accordance with the above policy, Applicant is advised that the process claims should be amended during prosecution either to maintain dependency on the product claims or to otherwise include the limitations of the product claims. Failure to do so may result in a loss of the right to rejoinder. Further, note that the prohibition against double patenting rejections of 35 U.S.C. 121 does not apply where the restriction requirement is withdrawn by the examiner before the patent issues. See MPEP § 804.01.
